Description

Our project is an Ecommerce T-shirt website.

This is not a specific brand of clothing but a website that has a variety of all brands. Allowing the user to search for different types of clothing and different brands.

There is also features that will show the user what is the most sought after brand.

Homepage

This is our homepage, where the user has access to the navigation bar as well as the Signup button.

They will be greeted with a big image of shirts.

They also have access to the trends feature that will show them what is the most popular shirt.

Frameworks and technologies for Web Application

We will be using the popular MERN stack technologies also known as “Full Stack Javascript Framework”.

- MongoDB takes care of storing the application's data.
- Express.js takes care of the server-side logic.
- React.js takes care of the frontend and user interface of the application.
- Node.js provides the runtime environment for the server-side code.
